

*This pretend personality/pseudonym primarily progressed from the prose-producer's progenitor, Penelope, who is presently pleased to be in her 88th parabola of Phoebeus.

- PRESERVE PDX'S PECULIARITY
- Prohibited? Piff. Take pleasure in the progressive positivity of a procession of people's pantless peaches pedaling past
- Politely pass, or partake in a puff, if peradventure you're propounded with paraphernalia
- Parry pedestrians pooping on pavement
- Put your Pinto past the planet's (potentially) puniest park
- Ponder philosophical paradoxes in the pitch-dark, peeper's peeled pending paranormal phenomena purported by pilots and professed by the Pentagon.

Written and Designed by Suzanne Turner

PELTON POWER

Purposeful Portlanders proudly promote pedaling places to preserve petroleum. If this prospect propels you, please prioritize your precious pate! And pack a parka to protect your plaid from probable precipitation.

Pay attention to pesky potholes peppering the pavement to prevent a painful (and presumably pricey) pit stop at Providence. Practice patience while PBOT produces paving projects.

Pull up your pantleg on Playday after payday and push Park-ward to PSU's periodic produce paradise to pile your pannier with parsnips, pickles, and pierogi.

PARKING POINTERS

Prime party proximity may portend parallel parking prowess, and peeling your Pathfinder from a packed-in place can prove prickly. Practice prior, or prepare for peering and pressure from passersby.

Patrollers growl persistently, prepared to penalize poor parking practices. Prepay for permits or be punished with a premium.

Preferentially, and to prevent the preceding predicaments, Penelope proposes purchasing a pass for public portage. It's pretty painless since Portland set the precedent allowing passengers to pay with your phone at the platform.

- POINTS PART II
- Pet your pug and pull apart a pretzel on the patio at Prost
- Peruse Peninsula Park's petals
- Pass the Pantone palette painted on a private parapet
- Proudly patronize poetry, paintings, pirouettes, and PIFF
- Prove your pluck at Pickleball
- Pore over pages at Powell's
- Profess passion with a padlock on the paling of the promenade
- Probe the palace of publisher Pittock (P.S. He was from Pittsburgh.)
- Pursue parity on a paddleboard
- Perambulate past Ponderosa Pines on peaceful park paths.
- Propagate pea plants in a public plot at Patton, Peace, Pier or Portsmouth
- Picnic or potluck with pals and pour plentiful pinot

- PROLIFIC PLANS IN POINTS
- Proceed perpendicular through the Park Blocks to peer at the permanent presentation of the "Portland Penny" that Pettygrove pitched to perchance peg Portland, Portland!
- Parade your Pride, or Peacock in the Park. Then pop in, purse first, to the piano bar in the Pearl
- Peregrinate to Peru via the photogenic PDX produced by the Port of Portland
- Pay purveyors for palatial purses at Pioneer Place
- Praise the performance of the Pickles, the Pilots, or the pros at Providence Park
- Prospect for Pluto or the Pleiades at the Planetarium

PORTAIT PURSUIT

Pictures for primed parents and preened progeny are perennially planned at the picturesque plateaus of Powell Butte.

The path may be plugged at popular points by professional photographers pursuing the perfect poses for a post meridian panorama.

Parking lots can be packed and in a pinch, people pivot, pull back to Powell Blvd and plod, plainly peeved, up the pitched parkway.

(Parenthetically, Penelope does not personally promote parking on Powell, past the prudent places, particularly when a person is planet-shaped pregnant like she did, when she was. Penny persevered but it was patchy.)

PAPATE PLEASERS

Pop into Peet's, perk up with a pour-over at Push x Pull, or patronize pitch-black and petite but pleasant Puff for your percolation.

Purchase packs of posh pasta and prosecco at Providence. Plus, peep the prepared portions for the peckish to pick at on-premises.

Pig out on plant-powered pizza, or put away pecan pie and passionfruit pastries at Petunia's. Pull up a perch at Por Que No, Pastini or Pambiche.

Polish off a pina colada at Palomar, or pick a pint- perhaps a pale ale or pilsner? Portland proffers plenty of prime pubs.